Studies done at the Université de Montréal in Canada in 2010 and at the Central European University in Budapest, Hungary, in 2012, show amazing correlations of voice processing and the understanding of maternal speech in infants. The Canadian study showed that newborns distinctly process their mother's voice differently from the voice of strangers. The Hungarian study provided evidence for understanding of a mother's speech in an infant even before vocabulary was being formed. Along with other investigations, researchers are uncovering information about the strong connection between mother and child, a bond that allows a child to recognize his or her mother long before the identification is made through words and concepts. In the Gospel, Jesus says, "My sheep hear my voice" (Jn 10:27). Medieval theologians and mystics like St. Anselm of Canterbury or Julian of Norwich would speak about the generative and nurturing qualities of Christ who brought forth life in his people through the power of his resurrection and keeps them close to himself as a mother cherishes her child. As the Gospel this weekend relates, the shepherd gives the sheep eternal life and no one can take them from the shepherd's hand. The scientific studies on infants and mothers keep coming back to the close connection that exists between those who bear children and bring them forth into the world. In this Easter season, when we celebrate the new birth given to each of us through the waters of baptism, we recognize that we have been joined to Christ in a sacramental way. The font is both tomb and womb where we die to sin and are born anew in Christ. Because he brings us forth as newborn sons and daughters of God, it only makes sense that we would "hear his voice," because he has been speaking to us from the moment we were born in him. Christ nurtures us in our life of grace and helps us mature in him.

STEWARDSHIP "My sheep hear my voice. I know them and they follow me." (John 10, 27) Always pray first. To follow the shepherd we must first hear his voice through prayer. It is only after we pray that we know the proper way to live as God's stewards.

For the Week The Altar Bread & Wine will be consecrated this week in memory of Josephine Lombardi at the request of M/M Magliaro. The Main Altar Candles will burn this week for the repose of the soul of Josephine Lombardi at the request of Bob & Patti Peck and family, as well as the Sanctuary Candle at the request of Josephine Peck.

2012 Bishop's Annual Appeal Christ Alive in His People

Your gift to the Bishop's Annual Appeal supports the Office of Prison Ministry which functions as a reflection of the Church's social justice teaching, particularly as it applies to the criminal justice system. The office serves as a resource for parishes and the faithful by providing information and ministry opportunities for clergy and laity in correctional institutions within the borders of the Diocese of Metuchen.

The Catholic Perspective: Advance Directives for Health Care Reform

Documents which provide guidance when a person is no longer able to make health care decisions are called "Advance Directives." It is recommended that those completing an advance directive also appoint a health care representative who is someone who is trusted and authorized to evaluate what the patient would want and to make those health care decisions. The Catechism of the Catholic Church provides clear guidance on end of life issues. The New Jersey Catholic Conference (NJCC) of Bishops has an Advance Directives for Health Care Form which reflects the Catholic Perspective. Copies are made available by contacting the Respect Life Office at 732-562-1990 x1629 or 1543. A copy can also be downloaded from the diocesan website at <http://www.diometuchen.org/deptsministries/respect-for-life/catholic-advance-directives-living-wills/or> the NJCC website: www.njcathconf.com. These forms are also available in Spanish. A Catholic Guide to End of Life Decisions is a resource made available by the National Catholic Bioethics Center. This document provides a clear explanation of the Church's teaching on end-of-life care, including advance directives and physician assisted suicide. Individual copies of this guide can be ordered online at www.ncbcenter.org.
